EAOF

The aim of the European Assertive Outreach Foundation (EAOF) is to stimulate a European-wide dialogue about the development of evidence-based models of Assertive Outreach (AO). AO interventions target severely mentally ill (SMI) patients in the community, and can be carried out by various multidisciplinary services. Although not all European countries have Assertive Outreach programmes, different programmes can vary widely, particularly with regard to organisational models, patient groups, client participation and research findings.

In some European countries AO is widely implemented, a few countries are about to implement AO, and in many other countries there is no AO available. The EAOF brings together clinicians, researchers and policy makers to discuss ways to optimize outpatient care for patients with SMI, including case-finding, searching for ways to increase motivation for treatment and service engagement, participation by clients and their families, rehabilitation and recovery.

The EAOF aims at setting up a European AO network, by organizing international AO conferences every two years in one of the European countries. The EAOF stimulates research across different countries to investigate and compare models of AO, their cost-effectiveness, and the development and implementation of other evidence-based practices within the context of AO. The EAOF will help ensure that the most vulnerable citizens in our communities receive the highest possible quality of care.

Overall expected learning outcomes of the EAOF Conference

After attending the event, participants will be able to have more knowledge about models of care, know how to implement integrated care and assertive outreach into healthcare systems and can get more insight into special therapeutic interventions. The main theme of the conference will be “learning from each other” which means that the (inter-)national and regional knowledge can support solutions by organizing communication of different health care providers. It will also extend perspectives by including peer workers. The conference will have an impact on the daily-work of the participants.

EuCoMS meeting

European Community Mental health Service providers (EUCOMS) Network

The EUCOMS network wants to make a difference with and for people who experience severe and enduring mental ill health. The network does this through the facilitation of mutual learning and support between primarily mental health service provider-, but also service user-, carer- and umbrella organisations that strive for the implementation of quality community mental health care. Besides mutual learning and support, EUCOMS acts as the linking pin between policy and practice and gives service providers a voice in the national and European policy arena. The ultimate aim of the network is that quality community mental health care services are implemented and accessible for service users in Europe and beyond.

One to two times a year EUCOMS organises a network event in collaboration with a host country. We started the network in 2015 in Oslo, and since then met in The Netherlands and Northern Ireland. Together with the host country we highlight a specific theme which for this event is: the collaboration between community mental health teams and the hospital.
